4 Ways to Pray

Pray on your own Set aside a regular time and place. Pray through the quarterly Church in Chains magazine or the Global Guide, or use the weekly email News Updates. Consider keeping a journal or making a prayer list on your phone or in a notebook.

Pray with your church Ask your church leader to include the persecuted church in intercessory prayers, or offer to lead prayers yourself. Get your church involved in Church in Chains' annual Lent Prayer Project and the International Day of Prayer for the Persecuted Church, held in November.

Pray with your small group If you are a member of a small group, you might suggest to the other members that they include prayer for the persecuted church as part of the general prayer time in the group.

Start a prayer group Could you start a regular group dedicated to praying for the persecuted church? You could start one in your church – let the leaders know what you are planning – or amongst like-minded people in your local area. You could meet in a home, hall or church building. It can be easier to run a Prayer Group if someone is willing to help you.

Your group might like to meet monthly, or it could meet quarterly to coincide with the publication of Church in Chains magazine and pray through its pages. Publicise your meeting: ask to have it announced at a Sunday service (or offer to make a brief announcement yourself); put a notice in your church magazine; invite interested people personally. Text or email to remind people when the meeting is on. Contact the Church in Chains office to have your Prayer Group listed on the back of the magazine.

Leading a Prayer Group

The Church in Chains logo shows four people (viewed from above) praying together in a group for persecuted Christians. Here are some suggestions that you might find useful for leading a prayer group .

- Start by reading an appropriate Bible passage.
- The Lord's Prayer can be a good way to begin and enter the right frame of mind before God.
- If your group is large, divide into smaller groups to pray.
- Remember that some people prefer not to pray out loud.
- Consider bringing material to help the group's understanding, such as maps, pictures of prisoners and printouts of news reports. Make sure everyone has received a copy of the Global Guide.
- When praying for a prisoner, remember also his or her family, church, jailers and fellow-prisoners. When praying for a situation in a country, remember the church, the government, other victims of persecution and any particular issues such as war or famine.
- Include updates and answers to prayer at subsequent meetings.

Some fresh ideas

Prayer with responses (to encourage everyone to join in, such as "Lord, have mercy" or "Yes Lord, Amen").

Written prayer – give out small pieces of paper and pens. Spend quiet time writing and then encourage anyone who would like to read their prayer.

Individual prayer – divide a list of prisoners by writing names on separate cards and handing them out for quiet prayer.

All together prayer – give a prayer point and ask everyone who wishes to pray out loud, at the same time.

You might like to end your meeting with tea and coffee for those who have time to stay.
